

Unit 9 Food News

Compréhension orale

Comprendre les habitudes alimentaires – Niveau A2+

1. Listen to the interview about food in Britain and tick the right column.

	Yes	No
a. They have egg and bacon every day for breakfast in Britain.		x
b. British hotels serve bacon and egg for breakfast regularly.	x
c. French wine is preferred.		x
d. British people don't drink wine every day.	x
e. Tea is a favourite in Britain.	x
f. People usually drink tea and coffee without milk.		x
g. Some British families have potatoes at every meal.	x
h. They never have potatoes with pasta.		x
i. More and more people are vegetarians.	x
j. Meg doesn't eat meat.	x

2. Listen again and answer the questions.

a. What do people often have for breakfast?

They often have cereals, toasts, jam, yoghurt.

b. What do restaurants do for vegetarians?

They offer a selection of vegetarian dishes or vegetarian menus.

c. What must you do when people come to dinner in your house?

You must check if they are vegetarians or not.

Script de l'enregistrement

Reporter: Is it true, Meg that you always have bacon and egg for breakfast in Britain?

Meg: Well, it used to be true but it isn't true any more; People often have cereals and toast, jam, yoghurt, things like that. Not many people have bacon and eggs except on weekends. Only hotels serve egg and bacon for all their breakfasts!

Reporter: Do you always have meat and vegetables at the main meal?

Meg: Not always. As for me, I don't eat meat.

Reporter: Do people in Britain drink a lot of wine?

Meg: Yes, they do. But not at every meal. They don't drink wine at every meal every day. Perhaps, we'll have a glass of wine on weekends. Mainly Australian and Californian wines.

Reporter: What do people drink then?

Meg: Water, juice. Some families drink tea with their meals.

Reporter: Do you drink much tea?

Meg: Yes, people drink tea during the day. Many people will have five or six cups of tea a day with milk. Few people drink coffee... But always with milk!

Reporter: What is the main vegetable at most meals?

Meg: I suppose we usually eat potatoes with our main meal. Oh, yes. With every meal potatoes are the main vegetables. Potatoes are very popular. We also eat a lot of pasta. Many families even eat potatoes and pasta!

Reporter: Are there many people who don't eat meat?

Meg: Yes, there are many vegetarians like me in Britain. Like me. More and more, in fact. Every restaurant will always offer several vegetarian dishes or vegetarian menus and when people come to dinner, you always check to see if there are any vegetarians.