THE SLOW EMANCIPATION OF WOMEN (PART 2)

Millie: So, Emma, when was civil wedding adopted in France?

Emma: In 1792 and divorce was legalized the same year.

Millie: in 1792! That's a long time ago!

Emma: In England, the civil marriage was introduced later, in 1836 and divorce was legalized in 1857.

Millie: Did you find out when school became an obligation for girls in France?

Emma: Yes, I did. It was in 1880. Was it the same in England?

Millie: No, it was earlier. School became compulsory for girls in 1870. Now, when did women obtain the right to vote in France?

Emma: In 1944.

Millie: 1944? Really? In England, women obtained the right to vote in 1928, yes, 1928!

Emma: What about Family Planning? In France, it was created in 1960. When was it in England?

Millie: Seven years later, in 1967. Oh, there's one question left. It is about the paid maternity leave. When did it start in France?

Emma: It started in 1945 but it was very badly paid. In 1970, all women obtained a 14-week maternity leave paid at 90%.

Millie: It is much better than in England. Compulsory maternity leave appeared in 1999 and it is still very badly paid.
